CITB Announce Withdrawal From Training

CITB have announced that they will withdraw from training delivery by 2020. We have a meeting lined up with the CEO Sarah Beale in December to discuss how this will affect training within our sector moving forward.

In the immediate future it will be business as usual whilst CITB look to sell/handover their centres to alternative providers as a going concern.

They have assured us that that they will not pull out of training until alternative provision is in place.

We have meetings lined up with Several FE colleges who may be interested in delivery of CISRS training and apprenticeships, however we fear that the uncertainty in the interim period could have a negative effect on course availability.
