Construction College Midlands Launch State-of-the-art £1M Scaffolding Training Facility

In a landmark move towards promoting sustainable practices in the construction industry, Construction College Midlands (CCM) has officially launched a state-of-the-art £1M scaffolding training facility and an innovative suite of green skills courses.

This significant investment is coupled with the introduction of several pioneering 'green courses', marking the college's commitment to sustainable practices in the construction industry.

The upgraded facility enables the college to provide additional apprenticeships and other CISRS courses.

CISRS Auditor Trevor Donoghue attended the launch event and said "The event was a huge success and the new building is very impressive and a great addition to CISRS delivery at the centre. Additional training capacity is always very welcome and shows that the scheme is in high demand in the Midlands region."
